Australian Association for Jewish Studies

Newsletter

Inaugural Issue

October/November 1989

Editor: Dr. Hilary Rubinstein

At the conference of the Association held in Melbourne in August, it was agreed that a twice yearly Newsletter should be produced in order to keep members apprised of current developments in the field of Jewish studies. (It is envisaged that issues will be produced each October/November and May/June.)

Members and other interested persons are invited to contribute material for future issues. Contributions might include: information on visiting scholars from overseas; projects and research in progress; grants and awards for scholars; academic and quasi-academic job announcements of interest to members; papers of Jewish interest at other academic conferences and articles of Jewish interest in non-Jewish Australian journals; resources in Australia in any area of Jewish studies not described in any obvious listing; bibliographic indexes and tools of Jewish interest that are unlikely to be widely known; courses at universities and other tertiary institutions of Jewish interest and information about new offerings; adult information courses outside the official academic system; activities and publications of members of the Association; relevant activities and resources among synagogues, Jewish organisations, or day schools; 'think-pieces' of reasonable length, on any aspect of our field.

Information about forthcoming activities should be sent well in advance. (Please bear in mind that our facilities for production are meagre and spartan!)

All contributions for inclusion should be send to Dr. Hilary Rubinstein, 159 Hotham Street, East St. Kilda, Vic. 3183. Material may be faxed to her c/- Australian Institute of Jewish Affairs, Fax

Forthcoming conferences

(a) The Victorian office-bearers of the Association are tentatively planning a one-day 'mini-conference' to be held in Melbourne on either Sunday 18th or Sunday 25th March 1990. The aim would be to present a number of papers on one or two specific themes. Although the viability of such a mini-conference and the specific topics remain undecided, possible topics include 'Jewish Responses to Crises', which might survey key events from Biblical times to the Shoah and the Arab-Israeli Conflict, and a series of papers on Jewish literature. Professor Rubinstein would be interested in hearing from anyone interested in presenting a paper or with further suggestions.
The fourth annual conference of the Association will take place from 15-18 July 1990 at Shalom College, University of N.S.W. An announcement will shortly be sent to members by Dr. Kohn, who is helping to organise it.

(b) The Australian Sociological Association TASA '89 Sociology Conference will take place at La Trobe University, Bundoora Campus, Melbourne, 8-12 December 1989. Offers and papers and abstracts were due on 31 August and registration forms were due on 30th September. But members might still wish to ascertain whether any papers are of relevance to themselves. General enquiries should be addressed to the Convenor: Katy Richmond, Department of Sociology, La Trobe University, Bundoora, Victoria 3083. (Tel. 03-479 2679; Fax 03-478 5814) Please note that sections include Ethnicity (convenor: Lois Foster, School of Education, La Trobe University, Tel. 03-479 2491) and Religion (convenor: Rowan Ireland, Dept. of Sociology, La Trobe University, 03-479 2681).

(c) A seminar-conference (organised by John Milfull, and Konrad Kwiet) entitled 'Why Germany? National Socialist Antisemitism and the European Context' will take place at the University of New South Wales, Kensington, N.S.W. 2033, from 20-22 July 1990. Broadly, this forum will explore German responsibility for the Holocaust and promotes 'a comparative and interdisciplinary approach which .... is prepared to confront both the paradoxes of the German-Jewish experience .... and the complex patterns of assimilation and rejection in other [European] societies'. Guests from overseas will include Reinhard Rurup (West Berlin) and Gunter Hartung (Halle, GDR/Prague). Papers for the conference will be circulated in advance and grouped in 'workshop style' sessions, and since it is envisaged that the bulk of the conference time will be reserved for discussions introductory comments will be restricted to 5-10 minutes per presenter.

Those interested, including prospective paper-givers, should contact John Milfull, Dean, Faculty of Arts, University of New South Wales. This conference will immediately follow our Association’s annual conference at Shalom College.

(d) The fifth biennial Canadian Studies Conference of the Association for Canadian Studies in Australia and New Zealand, is due to take place from 19-22 July 1990. The venue will be the Campus Conference Centre, University of New England, Armidale, N.S.W. 2521 (Tel. 067-73312). Among the several plenary sessions will be one on Immigration and Multi-culturalism. Victorian Vice-President Dr. Paul Bartrop hopes to present a paper on war crimes investigations in Canada and Australia. Stream co-ordinators include, in history, Mr. Don Beer, Department of History, University of New England, and, in sociology, Dr. Alan Black, Department of Sociology, University of New England. Prospective paper-givers should send the appropriate stream co-ordinator a one-page abstract of the proposed paper by 30 November 1989. General enquiries should be addressed to Don Beer, or Professor John Warhurst, Dept. of Politics, University of New England (on leave until November).

Membership news

Don’t forget to send in details of appointments or promotions or publications for inclusion in future issues. Meanwhile, congratulations to one of our members, Israel Kipen, on publication of his important and fine autobiography A Life to Live (Burwood, Vic.: Chandos Publishing, 1989), which covers his life in pre-war Bialystok, his escape to Shanghai, his migration to Australia and his career as a textile merchant and leading figure in the Zionist movement and Jewish community.

New Australian Jewish periodicals

Generation, a new Jewish literary cultural magazine with an emphasis on youth, was launched in Melbourne in October under the editorship of Alan Charak.

In 1990 the Australian Institute of Jewish Affairs will start to publish a periodical on prejudice and anti-semitism. (The Institute’s report on the Australian church press and the Jews is due to be issued soon).

The Australian Jewish Democratic Society is publishing a new journal: its first issue will appear towards the end of this year.

The Australian Jewish Historical Society’s next Journal (vol. 10, no.7), edited by Professor Bill Rubinstein, is due out in November. Information on membership and subscriptions can be obtained from Mrs. Beverley Davis, 3 Alma Road, Camberwell, Victoria 3124 (Tel. 8822600).

Judaica Libraries and Depositories

In a forthcoming newsletter, the editor hopes to list Judaica collections and Jewish-related materials in libraries throughout Australia. Accordingly, any information on accessible private collections would be welcome. Meanwhile, Mrs. Isabella Getreu (7 Maxwell Court, Toorak, Vic. 3142; 03 - 241 1625) kindly advises that her substantial collection of Judaica (focusing on the Shoah) is available for reference by scholars (please ring for appointment).

Members are reminded, also, that the reference library of the Australian Jewish Historical Society (Victoria) is available for consultation, by arrangement with the Hon. Secretary, Mrs. Beverley Davis, C/- PO Box 255, Camberwell, Vic. 3124 (Tel. 03-8822600).
Apart from a substantial collection of material relating to Australian Jewish genealogy, and a sizeable collection of primary and secondary source material, the Society holds the Jewish Herald on microfilm from 1879-1928. Further information re holdings including periodicals from Beverley Davis from whom the recently published Guide to Jewish Genealogical Records in Australia and New Zealand authored by Dr. Harvey Cohen and herself may be obtained ($5 + $1 postage). The Australian Jewish Historical Society, 166 Castlereagh Street, Sydney, N.S.W. 2000, also holds a wide range of primary and secondary materials, including periodicals (such as a long run of the Hebrew Standard). Information is obtainable from the Hon. Archivist, Mrs. Helen Bersten, (Tel. 02-261 8407).

The central depository for Australian Jewish records is surely the Archive of Australian Judaica, C/- Rare Books and Special Collections, Fisher Library, Sydney University, N.S.W. 2006. Further information regarding the Archive's extensive and important resources are available from the Archive's administrator, Sister Marianne Dacy (Tel. 02-692 2222), who issues periodic newsletters relating to holdings and new acquisitions, and from whom information regarding opening hours may be obtained.

(People with documents to contribute are reminded of the existence of these repositories!)

The Makor Library, Beth Weizmann Community Centre, 584 St. Kilda Road, Melbourne, is another valuable communal resource, open during office hours Monday-Friday. Librarian is Mrs. Ros Collins, and telephone reference enquiries are accepted (Tel. 03-516 921).

Judaica on celluloid

The following sets are available from Research Publications Ltd., P.O. Box 45, Reading RG1 8HF, England.
On microfilm:
(a) Jewish Chronicle (London), November 1841-present. (Current issues are shipped to subscribers twice a year, six months to a reel). Jewish Chronicle indexes covering the years 1841-1900 and 1947-(at least) 1984 are also available.

(b) Ha-Olam, 1907-50 (successively: Cologne, Vilna, Odessa, London, Berlin, London, Jerusalem). Comprises the complete set of 37 volumes. (This weekly organ of the World Zionist Organisation was founded by Nahum Sokolow as a Hebrew language counterpart to Die Welt; it became a forum for Hebrew scholars and writers and reflects the evolution of modern Zionism and its effect upon Hebrew culture).

On microfiche:
(a) Yad Vashem: Archives of Destruction. A photographic record of the Holocaust. (245 microfiche sequentially numbered, with corresponding index and brief description of each picture). Comprising over 15,000 photographs, derived from various sources, this collection provides the most comprehensive pictorial record on microfiche of the atrocities of the Shoah. Developed by Yad Vashem Martyrs' and Heroes; Remembrance Authority, Jerusalem, these photographs chronicle the events before, during and after the Shoah, with scenes of the following: pre-war Palestine; European synagogues, pre- and post-war; ghetto life; abuse of Jewish civilians by Nazi soldiers; Jewish servicemen; brutality against concentration camp inmates; cemetery gravestones; the concentration camps at liberation; Maidenek and Dachau museums; Shoah exhibits and museums; celebrations of Jewish festivals; the Nuremberg trials of major Nazi war criminals; the Eichmann trial.

Research Publications has also been preparing microfilm reels on immigrant culture and experience in the U.S.A. between 1789 and 1929. Apparently, individual reels (concerning specific ethnic groups including Jews) are available.

Bibliography of Zionism. 1980-89

Dr. S. Zwieg of Tel Aviv has provided a Bibliography of Zionism on computer flexible disk (probably IBM compatible). This bibliography lists all works on Zionism published worldwide between 1980 and 1989. The two disks, with installation instructions, may be obtained on strictly enforced short-term loan from Professor Bill Rubinstein, School of Social Sciences, Deakin University, Belmont, Vic. 3217.

Abstracts of articles

Scholars trying to locate an elusive or obscure article are reminded of the existence of the Blaustein Library at the American Jewish Committee, Institute of Human Relations, 165 East 56 Street, New York, N.Y. 10022, U.S.A. The editor has no information regarding the range of resources, accessibility and opening hours of the library. However, it is, perhaps, worth keeping in mind, since it abstracts articles of interest to the contemporary Jewish world, covering anti-semitism, socio-economic status, demography, politics, sociology, family, education in Israel and the Diaspora, Judaism, Holocaust, Zionism, Middle East, etc. Besides articles in such well-known journals as Commentary, Midstream and Foreign Affairs are those appearing in other, less readily available, American publications.

Research into anti-semitism

The Vidal Sassoon International Center for the Study of Anti-semitism, Institute of Contemporary Jewry, Hebrew University of Jerusalem, wishes to learn of any current or recently completed research in areas of concern, viz: anti-semitism through the ages and Jew-gentile relations, particularly in situations of tension and crisis. The Center now produces a newsletter, SICSA REPORT. Issue No. 2 (Summer 1989) lists a number of relevant research projects completed and others in progress. Any relevant information may be sent to the editors (Rosalind Arzt and Tamar Reinin), SICSA REPORT, Vidal Sassoon Center, Hebrew University, Mount Scopus, Jerusalem 91905, Israel (Fax 0011-972-2-826249).

The archival collection of the Vidal Sassoon Center is open to the public. The Center seeks to record details of relevant material (written, audio or visual) in other collections, and would welcome any bibliographic information on material on antisemitism in Australian hands (public or private).

Judaica Classification

People wishing to catalogue collections of Judaica may wish to consider a specially-tailored scheme formulated in Israel. A Classification System for Libraries of Judaica by David H. Elazar and Daniel J. Elazar was first published in 1968 and its second edition followed in 1979. It is issued under the auspices of the Center for Jewish Community Studies, Jerusalem.

Also of relevance to Judaica collections is Daniel D. Stuhlmans, Library of Congress Subject Headings for Judaica, 2nd ed., published by the BYLS Press, Chicago, in 1987. Stuhlman has abstracted relevant headings from the hefty volumes of general subject headings produced by the Library of Congress, and for specialised libraries his work is most useful.

China. The first Judaica studies Center in China has been operating for about a year. It is located in Shanghai under the presidency of Professor Zhu Weile and was the result of a seminar on Jewish history and culture held in China in August 1988.

Further information about Asia is included in the Asia-Pacific Survival Guide (for Jewish travellers) available from the Australian Institute of Jewish Affairs, GPO Box 5402CC, Melbourne, Vic., 3000, costing $5. (Contact Ms. Kaye Bignell on 03-828 8571 for this and further information about the Institute).

Latin America. To celebrate the quincentenary of Columbus' voyage to the New World, a major exhibition of 500 years of Jewish life in Latin America is being organised by the Jarkow Institute for Latin America of the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith. Simultaneous exhibitions are due to open in Philadelphia and Mexico City in 1991 before travelling to major urban centres in the Americas. A computerised 'Who's Who in Latin American Jewry' is also planned. Further information is obtainable from Rabbi Morton M. Rosenthal, Executive Director, Jarkow Institute for Latin America, 823 United Nations Plaza, New York, N.Y. 10017, U.S.A.

Grants for projects

Members are reminded that the Memorial Foundation for Jewish Culture, 15 East 26th Street, New York, N.Y. 10010, U.S.A., regularly considers applications for grants to aid research and other projects in the field of Jewish studies. (Competition is keen). Application forms are available from Dr. Jerry Hochbaum, Executive Director of the Foundation.

Stop Press!

Of possible interest may be the Conference on the History of Ukrainian Settlement in Australia, to be held at Mannix College, Monash University, Clayton, Vic., 3168, from Friday, 16 February to Sunday, 18 February 1990. (Accommodation available: ring 03-544 8895 or 544 8896). Anticipated emphasis: Social, economic and cultural experiences of Ukrainians in Australia; early period of settlement. (Oral history methods are encouraged where feasible). Titles of papers (of 30 minutes duration) should be received by 17 November 1989 pending a possible call for abstracts. Further information: 03-565 2253.

(Many thanks to Paul Bartrop for this and other information regarding conferences.)
APPENDIX

'Courses on Jewish Subjects at Australian Universities and Tertiary Institutions'

In late 1987 I agreed to compile, for the Jewish News, a listing of all Jewish interest courses at Australian tertiary institutions. In early 1988 I submitted the attached listing, drawn from university and college handbooks, with its preliminary article to the Jewish News. For whatever reason, the article was never published, although in discussing this recently with Sam Lipski, the editor, he assured me that a revision would be used soon.

Attached is the article and listing exactly as it was submitted in early 1988; it is, therefore, correct only as of that date. In the past month or two I have received word of a number of changes which have been added to an Addendum. Plainly, the listing is still not necessarily complete and any changes or revisions would be most welcome. Hopefully, a final revised listing can be compiled and distributed with the next Newsletter of the Association.

(Professor) Bill Rubinstein
President, AAJS
Courses On Jewish Subjects At Australian Universities and Tertiary Institutions: A Listing

by Prof. Bill Rubinstein

Below is a list of all courses on Jewish subjects offered at Australia's universities and other tertiary institutions. The name of each institution is followed by the relevant department and the name and number of each course. A brief description of the course is given where this could be found in the School's catalogue;
the name of the lecturer is also given where this could be found and is relevant.

So far as is known, the listing here is complete, although some smaller non-university schools may have been missed. Additions and corrections would be welcomed and will hopefully appear in a future issue.

All courses listed here are either directly or obviously of Jewish interest or (as in the case of courses on multi-culturalism) have an apparent interest to the Jewish community without necessarily being oriented to Jewish concerns. Other courses which in passing touch upon Jewish matters are, however, not included.
For instance, virtually every university in Australia offers a course on twentieth century Western history. Most if not all of these would cover the Nazi period, the Holocaust, and Zionism, at least briefly, but only in passing and not as the major subject of the course. Courses of this sort are not listed here.

In most cases, it is possible for non-students of that institution to take a particular course, although there is no hard and fast rule and anyone interested in taking a course without being a registered student at that institution should check without fail with the Administration of the institution concerned and the lecturer responsible for the course. Most courses last for a single term, and this period may vary in length between institutions, some of which have two terms per year and some three or even four terms.

Probably the most striking thing about the listing here is how relatively extensive it is: there are far more Jewish interest courses in Australia than is generally realised. I was certainly surprised at the number and extent and was unaware of many of them before I prepared this article. Yet it is equally striking that there is no Department of Jewish Civilisation anywhere in Australia, and anyone with a serious interest in a wide-ranging series of courses must hunt and pick among institutions. Indeed, it would be helpful for anyone seeking to do a program in Jewish Studies in Australia to have a lifetime free pass on Ansett Airlines! Sydney seems distinctly better served than Melbourne and the University of Sydney probably offers the widest range of university level courses on Jewish topics including, for instance, the only course on Australian Jewish history. Efforts currently underway to initiate and endow a Department of Jewish Civilisation.

* Written before the pilots' dispute! (W.D.R.)
at a University in Melbourne deserve the whole-hearted support of the entire Jewish community. Australian Jewry is thirty years ahead of American Jewry in its day school system but thirty years behind in its funding of Jewish tertiary-level studies as the threat to Hebrew at Melbourne University already shows.

Another point worth making is that not all Jewish interest courses are given by lecturers whom the Jewish community would have preferred to give them. Among courses on the contemporary Middle East which discuss the Arab-Israeli conflict, at least four are or were recently given by academics who are known to the Jewish community for their public support for the Palestinians and criticism of the Israeli case. One such course, for instance, was given by an academic, now resident in the United States, who was President of the Australia-Iraq Friendship Society and known for his close links to anti-Israel sources. Naturally, this does not make him or any of the others either unqualified to give their courses or biased in lecturing, and virtually any reputable academic who holds a strong view on a controversial issue will bend over backwards to be fair to the other side. Yet there are a dozen ways, ranging from blatant to subtle, where lectures, assignments, readings, the agenda and presentation of the syllabus, or the grades received by students, may be arranged to reflect a lecturer's bias, with absolutely no recourse by students in the interests of fairness. Perhaps even more disturbing from the Jewish viewpoint is the frequently close nexus between Christian clergymen and courses on the Biblical period. The most extreme example of this occurs at Flinders University in Adelaide, where the Studies in Theology sequence offers no less than the courses on the Old Testament, every one given by a Christian clergyman! In fact, although the Flinders University handbook is surprisingly cagey in stating this explicitly, the sequence is apparently given by a local Divinity School. Needless to say, this does not make these courses either valueless or antipathetic but many religious Jews would surely find it difficult to relate to a course given by men who, by definition, presumably believe that the religious truth of Judaism was supplanted by the coming of Jesus. Once again, this points to the abundant need for a well-funded Department of Jewish Civilisation, comprising scholars with international reputations and in close contact with their colleagues overseas, and supported by adequate library and secretarial facilities.

The Jewish Studies major

The Jewish Studies major is an interdepartmental programme offered jointly by this Department and by the Department of History. It is a non-language single major which is particularly suitable for students concentrating on Hebrew language as part of the Hebraic and Near Eastern Studies major. Enquiries should be directed to the Convener, Dr Mark Baker, through the Department of History.

The major will be available at first and second year levels only in 1990. A full three-year major is expected to be operational in 1991. Enquiries concerning third-year options for 1991 should be directed to the Convener, Dr Mark Baker, or Professor T Muraoaka.

Students in the Jewish Studies major may elect to spend their second year at the Rothberg School for Overseas Students at the Hebrew University in Jerusalem, and have their work credited as the equivalent of second year at Melbourne. In addition, Mount Scopus College is planning to offer two or three studentships annually, including fares, tuition, accommodation and maintenance, to sponsor study in Israel. In return students undertake to give the College an option on their services for two years after qualifying as a teacher. For further information see Professor Muraoaka.

The Archaeology Major

Archaeology is the study of past human societies, by interpretation of material remains, palaces, houses, tombs, pottery, and so on. It is especially concerned with the reconstruction of past life-styles and the examination of ways in which human communities changed. Since it aims at understanding people, it shares increasingly common ground with many fields of study, especially ancient languages and history. There is no doubt that archaeology brings an enriched and broader temporal dimension to the study of humanity.

The major offers students a wide range of Archaeology courses. In first year we concentrate on prehistory, the period of hunter-gatherers and early farmers. In later years, a variety of subjects offers choices in the antiquity of Western Asia and the Mediterranean, including the lands of Mesopotamia, Anatolia, Iran, Greece and Italy.

The normal entry to the major is via Archaeology 1, but students who have excelled in the archaeological sections of Classical Studies 1 or Near Eastern Studies 1 may apply for permission to enter the major at second year.

The major must include two subjects on the archaeology of Western Asia and/or the Near East and two subjects on the archaeology of Greece and/or Italy.

* 104-335 is a compulsory subject in third year.
Courses on Jewish Subjects

Addendum (October 1989)

The following revisions to 'Courses on Jewish Subjects' have been conveyed to the compiler. Others are most welcome.

Melbourne University

Department of History - New courses to be offered in 1989, include semester-long courses on 'Christians and Jews in Medieval Europe', 'Jews in English-Speaking Countries' and 'The Holocaust'.

Department of Classical and Near Eastern Studies - for the past year the Department of Near Eastern Studies (somehow most regrettably omitted from the original list; my apologies) - has been merged into an enlarged Department of Classical and Near Eastern Studies. Professor Takamitsu Muraoka and Dr. Ziva Shavitsky offer courses in Hebrew, assisted by Dr. Eliezer Paltiel. According to the excellent 1990 Department Handbook, the Department offers five first year courses in Hebraic and Near Eastern Studies, and a very extensive sequence of courses in both the Hebraic and Near Eastern Studies Major, and the Jewish Studies Major. The sequence of courses offered in these fields is attached in photostat. Additionally, the Department offers an Archaeology Major which includes Jewish-interest courses; again, this sequence is attached in photostat. Further information on these courses may be obtained from Prof. T. Muraoka or, in the case of History Department courses, from Mark Baker (Department of History).

La Trobe University - Dr. Anne Gardner has sent me the attached listing of corrections and amendments to the LaTrobe University listing.

The Guild Centre (Sydney) - these courses have apparently been absorbed by Sydney University

As noted, it is hoped to have a revised edition in the next newsletter, incorporating these changes and any others, news of which is most welcome.
Professor W. Rubinstein
School of Social Sciences
Deakin University
VIC 3217
7 August 1989

Dear Bill,

With reference to your listing of "Courses on Jewish Subjects at Australian Universities and Tertiary Institutions" I should like to point out a number of errors in the description of courses at La Trobe University.

1. Course number 1 - Biblical Hebrew is the same course as that listed as course number 4 - Reading Hebrew (Biblical) religious texts. I should prefer the retention of the description given in number 4.

2. Course number 3 - Ancient Israel. I should like the phrase "Old Testament" removed and replaced with "Bible". I avoid the use of "Old Testament" as, obviously, this is a Christian term. Further it is a course open to second and third year students, not simply to second year as stated. (Our designation II.../III... indicates the years).

3. One full year course has been omitted:--
Religious Studies II/III EJ - Early Judaism. A study of Jewish history, civilisation, religion and literature in two distinct, but overlapping, periods.
   a) 200 B.C.E. - 200 C.E.
   b) 200 C.E. - 600 C.E.
   (This is a distillation of the handbook entry which is rather lengthy)

4. Some other courses, while not being dedicated exclusively to Jewish history or Judaism, have some Jewish content or Jewish interest.

   Religious Studies II WR/III WR - Women in Religion (one semester). This subject explores images of the female in active and passive roles in several religious traditions, including Judaism.

   Religious Studies II RS/III RS - Religion and Society. A multidisciplinary study of the complex relationship of religion and modern, especially contemporary society. 'The Holocaust and Modern Religious Consciousness' is one of the topics treated.

Further, to describe us as focusing on "comparative" religious studies is inaccurate in that we do not "compare" religions. We deal with each tradition in its own right, adopting a historical approach. (We are, in fact a division of the History Department.)

Within the History Department History IHF devotes one half of the course to German Concentration Camps.

I note that you do not include any of the offerings of the Classics and Middle Eastern Studies Department at Melbourne University (there are quite a number), despite having mentioned, in your introductory remarks, the threat to Hebrew at Melbourne. Indeed, I believe that new courses have been developed there over the last year or two.
